TALIESIN WEST

Frank Lloyd Wright thought of Taliesin West as a home, work place, and architectural laboratory. We invite you to visit us today to experience the splendor Frank Lloyd Wright created in the Arizona desert.

Taliesin West is a National Historic Landmark offering a totally immersive tour experience. You will be welcomed into every room and space—nothing on the tour is left behind ropes or under glass. Your visit will be filled with surprise, majestic views, and intimate interior details as you discover the places that Frank Lloyd Wright lived, worked, and played in the Arizona desert.

Wright and his apprentices built Taliesin West out of the stone and sand that surrounded them in the Sonoran Desert at the foothills of the McDowell Mountains. Many of those apprentices (“the Fellowship”) who worked and lived alongside Mr. Wright still live at Taliesin West, as do the current students and faculty of the Frank Lloyd Wright School of Architecture—making Taliesin West an ongoing, vibrant community.

Visit Taliesin West today and be transformed.

The view from “the Prow” toward Taliesin West with the McDowell Mountains in the background is a highlight on all tours.
